Stayner Chamber honours community and business leaders in Clearview Township

STAYNER - The Stayner Chamber of Commerce will host its annual Presidents' Black and White Ball on Saturday, May 2, starting at 6 p.m.

The event, now in its 13th year, will take place at the Stayner Community Centre, 269 Regina St.

The highlight of the evening will be the business and community awards. Several nominations were received for the seven categories: Thomas Stayner Award (Citizen of the Year), Business of the Year, Employee of the Year, New Business Award, Community Builder Award (Volunteer of the Year), Youth of the Year and Entrepreneur of the Year.

"Judging took place last week and the judges were very complimentary of all the nominations," chamber president John Squire said. "It will be exciting to announce the winners Saturday evening."

Squire will also hand out a new award this year to a recipient or organization he's personally chosen. The President's Award is a special way to thank a person or group for their contribution to the community.

Clearview Township mayor Chris Vanderkruys will be in attendance to help present the Thomas Stayner Award.

The event also includes a live and silent auction, appetizers from local restaurants and entertainment by The DanceRoom. There will also be a DJ and dance.

Tickets are $35 each and available at Stayner Home Hardware and Miss Holly's Spa.
